Most candidates are still preparing for 2023 interviews.

The FAANG interview loop changed more in the past 18 months than in the previous 5 years.

Some rounds are gone.
New rounds replaced them.
Even familiar questions are scored differently now.

Where your prep time should go in 2026

If your plan looks like the grey bars, your effort is misallocated.

2026 (current) 2023 (old)

The 2026 FAANG interview funnel

Five stages. Each one can eliminate you before you reach a human.

1 ATS & Recruiter Screen

70 to 85% eliminated

2 Async Coding Assessment

40 to 50% of remainder

3 Live Coding Round

50 to 60% of remainder

4 System Design Round

30 to 40% of remainder

5 Behavioral Round

Final offer rate: under 1%

FAANG at a glance: what changed in 2026

How the loops differ across the five companies

	Coding Format	AI Tools Allowed	Behavioral Weight
Meta	35min, 2 problems	Yes (one round)	Medium
Google	45min, Google Doc	No	Medium
Amazon	60min, standard	Piloting	High (every round)
Apple	45-60 min	No	Medium
Netflix	Long-form, applied	No	High (culture)

4 round types most candidates have not prepared for.

These either did not exist 3 years ago or have changed enough to require new prep.

1 AI-Assisted Coding

Use AI tools while solving.
Scored on how, not whether.

Meta first, spreading

2 Debugging / Code Review

Find bugs in 50-100 lines
of unfamiliar code.

Meta, Google, Amazon

3 Scenario / Incident Walk

Read logs, traces, pick the likely cause.

Senior+, all FAANG

4 AI Literacy Behavioral

Tell me about a time you used (or rejected) AI.

Universal in 2026

6 mistakes that will sink your loop in 2026

These cost candidates offers every week.

- 1 Solving silently when interviewers are scoring narration.
- 2 Using an AI tool without reading what it produces.
- 3 Refusing to use the AI tool when the round permits it.
- 4 Answering behavioral questions with hypotheticals, not stories.
- 5 Skipping system design prep for a mid-level role.
- 6 Walking in without doing at least 3 mock interviews.

Plus 6 more in the full guide.
